MUSTAFA KEMAL ATATÜRK'S ADDRESS TO THE TURKISH YOUTH

Turkish youth! Your first duty is forever to preserve ,and defend the Turkish Independence and The Turkish Republic.

This is the very foundation of your most precious treasure. In the future ,too, there may be malevolent people at home and abroad, who will wish to deprive you of this treasure. If one day you are compelled to defend your independence,and your Republic,you must not tarry to weigh the possibilities and circumstances of the situation before taking up your duty. These possibilities and circumstances may turn out to be extremely unfavourable. The enemies conspiring against your independence and your Republic, may have behind them a victory unprecedented in the annals of the world.

It may be that , by violence, and ruse , all the fortresses of your beloved motherland may be captured, all her shipyards occupied, all her armies dispersed, and every part of the country invaded. And sadder and graver than all these circumstances, those who hold power within the country may be in error,misguided,and even may be traitors. Further more, they may identify their personal interests with the political designs of the invaders.The country may be impoverished, ruined and exhausted.

Youth of Turkey's future, even in such circumstances, it is your duty to save the Turkish Independence and Republic.You find the strength you need in your nobel blood.

ANKARA, 20 OCTOBER, 1927

Dear readers,

First of all, I would like to thank those who have given us the opportunity to write for the school magazine. I also want to give my great thanks to my dear friends who have worked hard for the magazine, and also to our students because of preparing essays and other good materials for this issue.

It is, I believe, honourable to be one of the members of Kayseri High School, which has been educating many people since it was opened in 1893. People in Kayseri, at the foot of Mount Erciyes, are proud of this great school. When our great leader, Atatürk, came to visit the school, he had explained his pleasure, too. The school has graduated thousands of people and they have always been proud of their school.

You, as dear students, know that you must study hard. You must follow the lessons carefully, compare the new knowledge with the ones you have learned before, do enough revision- do your homework, try to use the knowledge and improve it. We know that you always respect your elders and your teachers. That's one of special features of our culture, you know. We have a good culture. We are used to it and we must always take care of our Turkish culture and try to improve it in the best way.

As young people, you should try to improve your personality in the best way, too. You ought to try to be a good person. You should be helpful, friendly, patient and unselfish. You must always love your country and work hard.

In this magazine, you can see some photos of Prep-B and Prep-C of last year. They performed their prep class days' programmes. They were very successful. They tried to do their best. The prep classes of this year are going to perform their class day programme, too. They will, I believe, be very successful.

Finally, what I want to write is that I hope our students will finish this school and go to universities. Good luck for all of you and thank you very much for your reading my article.

Mustafa Kemal

ATATÜRK

Kemal Atatürk was born in Salonika, in 1881. His father died when he was only seven, and the family was left almost penniless. Mustafa did well in school and his teacher gave him a second name; Kemal, meaning "perfection". Mustafa went to the army academy when he was 12 and was commissioned an officer in the army at 21. While he was still a young officer, he formed a secret committee to fight government corruption.

Even before World War I, the Ottoman Empire was breaking up; Austria sized parts of the Balkans. Bulgaria declared its independence. Italy captured what is now Libya. During World War I, Turkey joined the Germans. At the end of the war, the Empire was stopped of its territories, and the Allies were making plans to come up Turkey itself into independent states and occupied territories. But Mustafa; now a general in the Turkish Army, had to support all the Turkish People: He drove back the Allied forces. The Sultan fled the country to save his life. He founded the Republic of Turkey and served as its President from 1923 until his death. Later he was called Gazi Mustafa Kemal. The Turkish Grand National Assembly gave him the surname Atatürk, which means "Father Turk" or "Father of Turks" in 1933.

At once he began reforming Turkey. Amazing reforms in the Turkish political, social, economic, and religious life took place under his forceful leadership. He gave Turkish women their freedom and abolished such customs as the harem the veil and the fez. He outlawed polygamy. He eliminated corruption, improved public education and introduced the Roman alphabet for the Turkish language. His government encouraged the development of banks and new industries.

Six principles guided Mustafa Kemal in leading his people into the modern political world; Nationalism, secularism, populism, statism, republicanism, and revolutionism.

Nationalism meant a national consciousness, a sense that all within the borders Turkey no matter what their origin, their appearance or, their beliefs-were Turks. All should regard themselves as Turks and, theoretically, all would be treated alike in law and in practice.

Secularism meant separation of the government and organized religion.

Populism meant the popular will. Reforms were justified by stating that the Grand National Assembly was the agent of the people and expressed the popular will in legislative and executive reform.

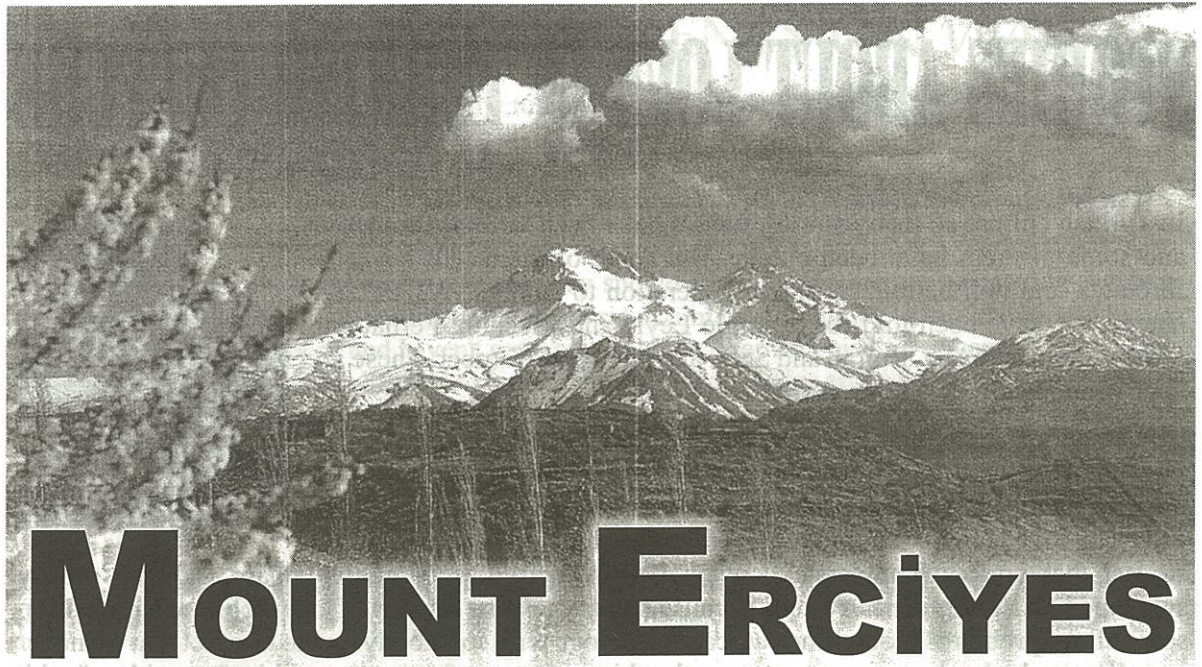

Republicanism referred to the form of representative elected government.

Statism was concerned mostly with upgrading the economy of the nation through massive grants of state aid and training of experts in management. The nationalization of railroads, ships, banks, and other industries such as the manufacture of tobacco, matches, sold alcohol and sugar was accomplished under this principle.

Revolutionism was the expression of an attitude of mind to make and accept changes in the political, social, and economic life of the individual and the whole people in order that the country might proceed quickly to the fulfillment of its modern goals.

He died at 9.05 a.m., November 10, 1938. If you are ever in Turkey on the morning of November 10, you will be startled at 9.05 by the piercing shriek of sirens. Flags will drop to half-staff. Every radio will go dead. You will see every car on the street stop where it is, and every pedestrian, too. There will be 5 minutes of silence in honour of Atatürk. In every Turkish town and city that silence is kept.

STORIES ABOUT LOVE IN TURKISH CULTURE

In Turkish culture so many stories, novels have been written about love and some of them have been classic. But some of them will never be forgotten and will be told from one generation to another. We all have listened or have been told for example Leyla and Mecnun, Ferhat and Sirin, Kerem and Asli, Emrah and Selvi and Arzu and Kamber. These are our common past, our children must listen learn them.

Nowadays when we hear those stories we laugh and joke about them. Because noone believes a man can dig a hole in a mountain because of his love, or die of his sadness because he couldn't reach his lover... Today generally love is like a hamburger when you are hungry, because you eat so fast that you can't understand when it's finished. The beginning phase is being mostly swallowed, suffering is nearly zero because sometimes one message from mobile telephone can solve all the problems. Sometimes we can fall in love with somebody on the Internet that we never saw. We are lucky, because we can say the things that are forcing us, to him/her with a "cold, electronic" message or we can meet him/her not even have a trouble to say 'hello' on the Internet. But they were not as lucky as we. Let's look what were the things they lived and think about ours'...

Leyla and Mecnun:

Once upon a day there was Kays Ibnü'l-Mülavvah, he fell in love with Leyla his neighbor's daughter. They were so little and when this is heard, Leyla's family seperated her from him and prevented her from meeting Kays. Kays suffered so much, and his dad decided to want Leyla from his father. But Leyla's father didn't accept this. Then he decided to marry Leyla with another. After the marriage Kays was demented with love and went to some quiet places and think. After this situation he was known as 'Mecnun'. His father wanted him to go to Mecca to pray and maybe to be saved from this helpless love. But Mecnun prayed for his love to grow. After this he began to live in the desert in a very bad situation with wild animals with the pain and love. In these days he died in a valley after this Leyla died because of her sadness.

Ferhat and Sirin:

There was a 'sultan', queen of her land. She didn't have a child but she had a close relative named Sirin and she would do anything for Sirin. Sultan decided to make for her a big house. For this house a worker and his son, Ferhat were working for the ornamentation of the walls. One day Sirin and the sultan went to see this work, Sirin saw Ferhat. The moment that they saw each other they fell in love. Then one day Sirin went some place and drank water that tasted marvelous. She wanted to have it in her house but for this someone had to make a hole in the mountain to bring the water. Sultan said: "Whoever can do this, will get from me whatever he wants." Ferhat knew what he wanted and talked with sultan. After so many days he was making a hole in the mountain with the big love of Sirin. Somehow sultan learns the love of Ferhat and Sirin and decides to stop this. She made a plan; she sent him 'helva' that was made for Sirin because she died. Ferhat believed this and throw his hand to the mountain. Rocks fell on him and he died, with hearing this Sirin died instantly.

STUDENTS' COMMENTS ON WAR

➤ “War is the biggest thing on my mind and I can't shake it off. It scares me that thousands maybe millions will die.”

Ayşegül Pekdemir Prep / E

➤ I think the war on Iraq is unfair. They should think of another way of getting Saddam Hussein out of power. They are not going to get rid of him they are going to hurt the people living there. Most of them are ill and haven't got a proper home. War isn't nice for anyone. Nothing will happen to Saddam Hussein, he is surrounded by body guards and his army. I wish I was in charge of this country I'd soon put a stop to this war. Tony Blair is ignoring his people's demands!! Loads of people all over the country are not wanting to go to war.

Soner Yartunç Prep / E

➤ I am totally against war on Iraq, I feel for all the innocent lives that could be lost, I think they need to find a new solution on getting rid of Saddam Hussain.

Mustafa Aksoy Prep / D

➤ If people would listen to children properly as if what we had to say was important (which it is) they would see the easiest way to sort things out. We, as children, see things simpler, without thinking about pride, shame or POLITICS. War is somthing adults do for pride and politics, they can't admit they are wrong.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE

A lion feel asleep in his cave one afternoon. He ate a large dinner. A cheeky little mouse ran into the lion's cave. He jumped on to the lion's nose and ran up to the top of his head. The lion woke up. He was very angry. He roared loudly and caught the mouse in his paw. "How dare you woke me up" the lion roared "I'm going to kill you for that."

The mouse was afraid. "Please ,please let me go!" he cried. "I didn't mean to wake you up. Don't kill me. Perhaps one day I can help you."

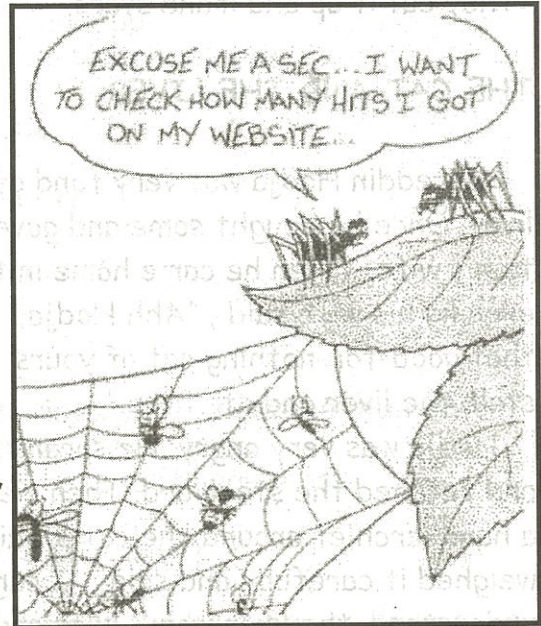

"What?" said the lion. How can a tiny animal help the king of all the animals? The lion thought this was very funny. He laughed and let the mouse go free. "Alright mouse" he said. "Run away" The mouse slipped out of the lion's paw and scampered away.

The other day, some hunters spread a net in the forest to catch wild animals. The hunters caught the lion with their net. He struggled hard to get free. He rolled on the ground, but the net wound round and round him. Soon he couldn't move.

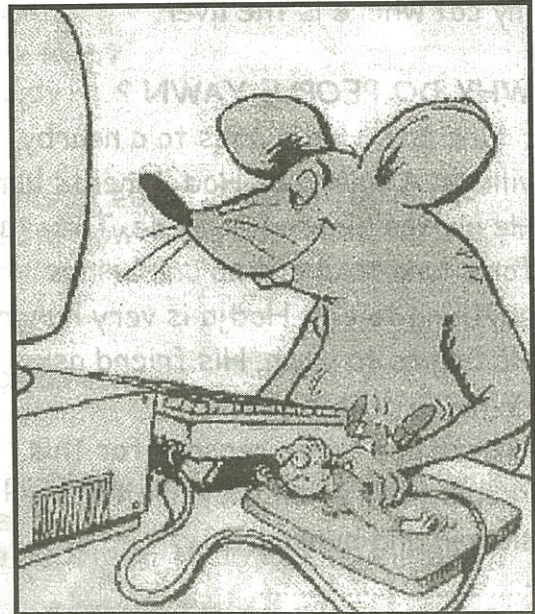

The mouse heard the lion roaring and growling. He ran to see what happened. "Lie still", he said to the lion. "I'm going to set you free". The mouse had sharp little teeth. He worked very hard and began to chew through the net. Soon he made a small hole. The mouse chewed hard. The small hole in the net became a big hole. The lion moved one paw. Then he stood up. That was the success of little mouse.

The mouse said, "You laughed at me when I promised to help you. Now you can see that a little mouse can help a great lion.

When Frankenstein Came to My Birthday

by Robert Scotellaro

He came to my birthday
and banged down the door.
He knocked over plates
and dropped cake on the floor.

He shouted so loud
that we plugged up our ears.
He stomped on our sneakers,
which brought us to tears.

He drank all the punch,
for he had a great thirst.
He squeezed me so tight
that I thought I would burst!

He sat on the couch
and it broke into bits.
My mother and father
were both having fits.

"We all make mistakes," Momma said,
"now and then.
But don't invite Frankenstein,
ever again!!!"

How to Torture Your Teacher

by Bruce Lansky

Only raise your hand when you want to sharpen your pencil
or go to the bathroom.
Repeat every ten minutes.

Never raise your hand
when you want to answer a question:
instead, yell, "Oooh! Oooh! Oooh!"
and then, when the teacher calls on you, say, "I forgot what I was going to say."

Lean your chair back,
take off your shoes, and
put your feet on your desk.
Act surprised when the teacher
puts all four legs of your chair back on the floor.

Drop the eraser end of your pencil
on your desk.
See how high it will bounce.

Drop your books on the floor.
See how loud a noise you can make.

Hum.
Get all your friends to join in.

Hold your nose,
make a face, and say, "P.U.!"
Fan the air away from your face,
and point to the kid in front of you.

On the last day of school,
lead your classmates in chanting:
"No more pencils!
No more books!
No more teachers'
dirty looks!"

Then, on your way out the door, tell the teacher,
"Bet you're looking forward to summer vacation this year.
But I'll sure miss you.
You're the best teacher I've ever had."

CLOTHES

The period of occurrence of cutting-out clothes are believed to date from the IX century.

Roman tunic is the most ancient dress tailored from rectangular piece of fabric.

The first attempts to cut clothes over the form of a human body have appeared in the East, but have not received sufficient development. More favorable conditions were in Europe when people have wished to emphasize the shapes of body.

For this purpose medieval masters of XII century made cuts on each side of dress and connected edges with lacing. But clothes were still monolithic.

It is supposed that the idea of dividing dress into parts were adopted from inventors of knightly armor.

The dress with sewn-in sleeves appeared approximately in XIII century; with collars in XIV and with pockets in XVII.

By cross seam dress was divided into bodice and skirt. New look of wear maintained with insignificant changes from XVI to XIX centuries. The bases of this dress were the skirt on the special dense cover with hoops of different sizes and corset

New type of clothes common for all estates appeared after French Revolution (1789). The elements of folk dress striked to men's clothes (long tight pants, short waistcoat). Even tail-coat and dinner jacket descend from outdoor clothes of English peasants. Women got rid of tight corset (though it became fashionable again and preserved till twenties of XX century).

From the evidence of magazine "The Art of Tailor" (1908, #1) first system of cutting was invented by Frenchman Michael. In 1831 it was changed by scale system. Before clothes were made only by "patterns" which were the properties of family (father handed down it to his son).

The introduction of sewing machines in last decades of XIX century brought to raising the productivity of labor and to complication of shapes of cutting details. The shapes and design was changed, skirt was shortened and the century-old dress was replaced by practical clothes from 2 or 3 parts (skirt, blouse, jacket).

In 1928 Coco Chanel brought into women's fashion the suit of men's type.

A JOKE

Debbie wasn't at home and it was getting awfully late. Not knowing any of her girlfriend's phone numbers, her mother fired-up Debbie's computer and saw a list of e-mail addresses. She sent a note to each name asking if they knew where her daughter was. Within twenty minutes, she got back 16 replies all saying that she wasn't to worry, that Debbie was spending the night at their house and had neglected to telephone.
